mental health in JAPAN

SPEAKERS

JAMES ROBSON [Harvard University]
SUSAN L. BURNS [University of Chicago]
CHIKAKO OZAWA-DE SILVA [Emory College]
KAREN NAKAMURA [Yale University]
CHRISTOPHER HARDING [University of Edinburgh]
SUZUKI AKIHITO [Keio University]
AMY BOROVOY [Princeton University]
CLARK CHILSON [University of Pittsburgh]

Since the late 1990s, Japan has experienced a transformation in public perceptions of mental health. As psychological suffering becomes less stigmatized, programs designed to promote a more healthy and less stressful society have reconfigured the ways in which government officials, healthcare professionals, and the general public access and utilize both Western and traditional Japanese forms of medicine. This conference brings together eight international experts from across the globe to analyze the profound shifts that are remaking the care of mental health in Japan today.

REGISTRATION REQUIRED
Please email lynn kawaratani at lyk12@pitt.edu with your name and affiliation.